

YVR Canada Line Stations

* Previously with Sharp & Diamond Landscape Architecture

From 2005 to 2010, Mike Enns led the urban design and site development of 3 stations and 3 kilometers of the Canada Line on Sea Island in conjunction with Vancouver International Airport leading up to the Vancouver 2010 Olympics. The Canada Line is a vibrant green corridor offering a welcome sequence for arriving passengers, residents and employees of YVR. Scope included detailed design and implementation of entry plazas and pathways, site furnishing, green technology and public art

As a LEED-accredited professional, Bryce Gauthier also led the design team through concept to detailed design of the International Terminal Station, featuring the largest vertical living wall in Canada.
